

Sigma Contracting Inc.

Building with Integrity Since 1983

Sigma Contracting, Inc. is an Arizona based company operating since 1983 and licensed in nine southwestern states. As a premier commercial general contractor, the Company has established a wide footprint in the region with an extensive portfolio of projects in a variety of sizes and industries. We proudly have established long-standing client relationships with many top developers, architects, businesses, municipalities and business leaders in the region. For over 40 years, Sigma has been the turn-key contractor of choice for over 900 construction projects, including hospitals, medical office buildings, schools, public venues, retail and industrial spaces, banks, office buildings and municipal facilities.

Sigma was founded by Dan and Melinda Hinkson in 1983. Dan is a lifelong construction professional, having grown up in a construction family and started at an entry level as a laborer and then carpenter. Melinda joined him to oversee marketing and business development, as well as office management. Sigma continually employs a team of approximately 20-30 people and orchestrates the strategic contributions of selected vendors and preferred sub-contractor companies. Sigma is known for outstanding customer service and relationship management, secured by the hands-on participation of ownership throughout every phase of a project until client goals are met and expectations are exceeded.

Company's Culture:

Since 1983, Sigma has forged a reputation of honesty and integrity, and as a leading commercial general contractor dedicated to exceeding expectations of its clientele. Under the combined direction of Dan and Jerry, Sigma continues to flourish in a competitive market. They instill a culture of pride, teamwork, genuine interest and caring, resulting in long-term relationships with employees, subcontractors and clients alike. Both Dan and Jerry were raised in 'construction families' which from a very early age instilled in them valuable insight into the technical, managerial and social aspects of the industry. Melinda's focus is on relationship building through marketing and business development efforts, as well as general aid to the operations. Their focus is on treating people fairly, personally and professionally, evidenced by successful and long-term relationships forged over the years. Because they truly enjoy and have a passion for the construction industry and those with whom they associate through the business, they are actively engaged in the day-to-day business operations, with ownership involvement in every project from start to completion. This fosters a high level of quality control, expedites project processes, aids in communication between team members, ultimately results in successful long-term relationships with their clientele.

Community Involvement

Sigma is committed to taking a leadership role in the community by providing the not-for-profit sector with project excellence and cost efficiencies in the construction of numerous churches, community centers, food banks, medical clinics, schools, and shelters.

Sigma has enjoyed a long association with The Salvation Army. Having built or managed many of The Salvation Army projects, including acting as Project manager for the 150,000 square-foot Ray and Joan Kroc Corps Community Center in Phoenix.

In addition, Dan Hinkson, Sigma's President, has served in a variety of advisory board and consultant positions for The Salvation Army and other not-for-profit organizations, including Beatitudes and Horses Help in Phoenix. Sigma participates in many fundraising and volunteer activities for these and many other groups on a continuing basis.
